FOURTH DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

[BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.]

RICHMOND, May 31, 1873.

DEAR NEWS: The interest of to-day's proceedings began with a speech from the Rev. A. Yeager, Rabbi of the Jewish Synagogue of Mobile, and a recent convert to Christianity. Mr. Yeager is a large and splendid looking man, and has a reputation for great learning and piety. He speaks broken English, but is very fluent and interesting, and his experience given in a book of thrilling power, entitled "Mind and Heart in Religion," forcibly reminding one of John Bunyan's Grace Abounding to the Chief of Sinners.

The order of the morning having arrived, Dr. A. B. Brown, of Halifax, Va., proceeded to deliver an address on the history of Baptist efforts in the cause of education. Dr. Brown is a singularly humble and unassuming man, but is one of the most learned and able ministers of Virginia. He was educated at Richmond College and the University of Virginia, and is one of the most vigorous and profound thinkers in his denomination. His paper gave a full account of the Baptists in the cause of education during the last hundred years, tracing especially the history of Brown University, Rhode Island, Columbian College, District of Columbia, and Richmond College.At the conclusion of Dr. Brown's address, Dr. John A. Broadus asked leave to introduce some resolutions adopted by the American Baptist Educational Commission, of which there is a branch in Richmond, looking to the improvement of the great National Centennial in 1876, by raising from three to five millions of dollars for Baptist Schools and Colleges over the whole land. He was followed by Dr. L. L. Cutting, the Secretary of this Commission and Dr.
Barnes Sears, the Agent for the Peabody Fund, both setting forth the urgent need of higher and more universal education, and urging the importance of united efforts to endow our Colleges.
Dr. Cutting mentioned the Theological Seminary at Chicago, the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Greenville, South Carolina, and the Columbian College at Washington, D. C., as the chief beneficiaries of the fund.Dr. J. W. Williams of Baltimore, said that the name of Columbian College had been changed to "Columbian University," that the institution was now in the possession of property which would cost them $4,000,000, if they had to purchase it, that W. W. Corcoran, the President of the Board of Trustees, had recently given the College property worth $200,000, and it was the purpose of the managers of that institution to make it a University indeed, by utilizing the Patent Office, Smithsonian Institute, Agricultural and other departments of the government for the promotion of science and learning.The report on Foreign Missions read to-day, showed that the receipts of the Southern Baptist Convention had been over $50,000 for the year—the African mission is doing well—the African mission has been partially suspended, owing to the prevalence of war among the tribes, but that which elicited most interest was the Italian mission, which, though only three years old, has seven churches and 277 communicants. The pledge of the South to raise $20,000 for a church in Rome has not been fully redeemed, $22,363.10 has been given, of which $13,656.96 were contributed by the North; $1,240.29 in Great Britain, and about $18,000 in the South. Drs.
Jeter and G. B. Taylor addressed the body on the Italian mission, being graciously introduced by Dr. H. A. Tap-per, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board. Dr. Jeter gave an account of his mission to Rome. He would have had larger success in England in raising money, but for the fact that the English Baptists were themselves collecting funds to build a church in Rome. He detailed the difficulties in securing a building in Rome, difficult in securing a good title, difficulties in getting a mission, modern Rome is built upon the ruins of ancient Rome, and a foundation costs sometimes enormously. He had advertised and hunted in vain; at one time he thought he had purchased a suitable house, but before the deed was signed, the owner insisted in putting in a clause forbidding the property to be used for a Protestant school or church. The Baptist church at Rome had had a wonderful success, notwithstanding its difficulties, and made decided progress while he was there. He gave a deeply interesting account of his visit to Bari; his ordination of a most promising young man, and the affection manifested for him, to the extent that some of the brethren "saluted him with a holy kiss." The other churches are in a hopeful condition, but brethren should not be too sanguine about this mission, the converts are generally poor, the Italian character was, in the main, very sincere, and it would require great prudence and wisdom to bring the work there to a state of permanent prosperity. If any one could do this, he thought Dr. George B. Taylor could, who was to take the place he has just left at Rome.Dr. Taylor then spoke. He is a son of the late Dr. James B. Taylor of Va., was educated at Richmond College, and the Virginia University—has been chaplain of the University, is the author of the life of his father and a number of other valuable and popular books, and remarkable for his wisdom and purity.
In ten days he and his family expect to sail for Europe. The Association seemed much moved by the patriotic address of this good man. H. K. Ellyson read the report on State missions, which showed that 38 Missionaries had been at work in different parts of the State with the most gratifying results.

He was sorry to report that there was a deficit of about $4,000, due the Missionaries, whereupon a zealous missionary spirit, and while in Pittsburgh, he sent out a colony from his Parish and built the beautiful St. Peter's Church.

About the year 1861, Dr. Lyman, feeling the need of rest, after many years of arduous labor, and desiring to give his children the advantages of study and traveling abroad, went to Europe.
Here he remained for some years, and during most of the time, was the Pastor of congregations of our Church in Florence and in Rome.In this capacity he was very useful, and rendered valuable service to the Church.Shortly before he returned to this country, Dr. Lyman was chosen with great unanimity by the Trustees of the General Theological Seminary, a body composed of the Bishops and of clergy and laity from all parts of the United States, to the Deanery or Presidency of that Institution. But he declined this appointment, and soon afterwards became Rector of Trinity Church, and the principal Church of San Francisco.Dr. Lyman was a delegate from California to our last General Convention, and he there distinguished himself by a very happy speech made in advocacy of resolutions presented by him, on the subject of Ritual, which were promptly adopted by both houses of the General Convention and harmonized the Convention when it seemed impossible to come to an agreement after weeks of exciting debate.The choice of Dr. Lyman to our Assistant Bishopric is believed by those who know him well, to be a very happy one. He is a man of high christian character; able, learned and judicious; firm in matters of principle, but always most kindly and genial in manners. He is an excellent and attractive preacher, and a fluent and ready speaker. He is a man of great energy, and we may hope much for the extension of the Church from the missionary zeal which he has always manifested. Working as he will, in perfect harmony with the revered and beloved Bishop Atkinson, we may anticipate the best results to the Episcopal Diocese of this State.SALE OF VALUABLE BOOKS.—The Secretary of State advertises in another

"we no fight," "we like peace." Boston

CROWDED OUT.

Original matter crowded out to-day, to make room for the highly important decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, given in our editorial columns.

AN IMPORTANT BANK DECISION—CONFEDERATE CONTRACTS.

The case of the Planters' Bank of Tennessee against the Union Bank of Louisiana, decided at the last term of the United States Supreme Court, involves some new and important points touching Confederate transactions.

An abstract of the decision was telegraphed by the Press Association as soon as it was rendered, but the abstract was brief and unsatisfactory.

As it was impossible to get a correct idea of the opinion from the telegraphic digest, we applied to D. W. Middleton, Esq., the Clerk of the United States Supreme Court, for a copy of the proceedings of the case. Mr. Middleton complied promptly and courteously with our request, and we are under deep obligations to him for this kindness.

The decision is so long that it will occupy more space than we have at our command, and we are therefore forced to the necessity of abridging it; but we will make our analysis as thorough and complete as possible, and will follow the language of the Court in all essential particulars, omitting such parts of the decision only as we may deem unnecessary for a full understanding of the points in litigation.

There are, in reality, two cases decided, Nos. 147 and 170, in the Supreme Court, the Planters' Bank of Tennessee, Plaintiff in Error, vs. the Union Bank of Louisiana, and the Union Bank of Louisiana, Plaintiff in Error vs. the Planters' Bank of Tennessee, in error to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Louisiana; but the two cases were considered together, and one decision rendered covering both writs of error. Mr. Justice Strong delivered the opinion of the Court.

The action was brought in the Circuit Court of Louisiana by the Planters' Bank of Tennessee against the Union Bank of Louisiana, to recover an alleged balance of account. The Plaintiff obtained a judgment in the Circuit Court, but the case was removed to the Supreme Court by writs of error sued out by both parties.

The record shows that some time prior to September, 1863, the Plaintiff and Defendant entered into a contract, the nature of which was as follows: The Plaintiff had remitted to the Defendant large sums of Confederate treasury notes, and had also forwarded drafts and other claims for collection, it being understood between them that the drafts and claims thus forwarded were payable only in Confederate currency, and all collections made on account of the Plaintiff were made in that currency, with the knowledge and authority of the Plaintiff. Thus the balance in favor of the Plaintiff was made up. About these facts there was no controversy.

One of the defenses set up at the trial was an alleged payment by the Defendant to the military authorities of the United States, in military possession of New Orleans. On the 17th of August, 1863, an order was issued by Major General Banks, "requiring the several banks and banking associations of New Orleans to pay over without delay to the Chief Quartermaster of the army or to such officer of his department as he might designate, all moneys in their possession belonging to, or standing upon their books to the credit of, any person registered as an enemy of the United States, or engaged in any manner in the military, naval, or civil service of the so-called Confederate States, or who should have been or who might thereafter be convicted of rendering any aid or comfort to the enemies of the United States. The order declared that such funds would be held and accounted for by the Quartermaster's department, subject to the future adjudication of the government of the United States. Under this order the Defendant, as the evidence tended to show, on the 10th day of September, 1863, paid to the acting Quartermaster the balance standing to the Plaintiff's credit on their books, being the whole balance due. The payment was made in Confederate notes, and the Quartermaster accepted them in discharge of the balance. Whether this was a satisfaction of the claim of the Plaintiff upon the Defendant is a controlling question in the case. The Circuit Court instructed the jury that it was not, because payment was made to the Quartermaster in Confederate notes, which the Court was of opinion he had no authority to receive, though holding that the military authorities thus exacting payment were invested with all the rights of a creditor."

The following is the language of the Supreme Court on this statement of the case: "It might be difficult to maintain, if the military authorities were clothed with the rights of creditors, that it is, if they had succeeded to the position and title of the plaintiffs, that they could not determine what funds they would receive in payment of the balance on the defendant's books to the credit of the plaintiff. It is not perceived why they could not accept Confederate notes in discharge of a debt which had become due to them. But a grave question lies back of this. Did the order of General Banks justify any payment of the balance to the military authorities? If it did not, it is immaterial in what currency the payment was made. Payment in any currency was no protection to the debtors. The validity of the order is, therefore, the first thing to be considered. It was made, as we have seen, on the 17th of August, 1863. Then the city of New Orleans was in quiet possession of the United States forces. It had been captured more than fifteen months before that time, and undisturbed possession was maintained ever after its capture. Hence the order was no attempt to seize property "frangible bello," nor was it seizure for immediate use of the army. It was simply an attempt to confiscate private property which, though it may be subjected to confiscation by legislative authority, is, according to the modern law of nations, exempt from capture as booty of war. Still, as the war had not ceased, though it was not flagrant in the district, and as General Banks was in command of the district, it must be conceded that he had power to do all that the laws of war permitted, except so far as he was restrained by the pledge of congressional legislation. A pledge, however, had been given that rights of property should be respected. When the city was surrendered to the army under General Butler, a proclamation was issued, dated May 1, 1872, one clause of which was as follows: "All the rights of property of whatever kind will be held inviolate, subject only to the laws of the United States." This, as was remarked in the case of the Venice, 2 Wall., 258, "only reiterated the rules established by the legislative and executive action of the national government in respect to the portions of the States in insurrection, occupied and controlled by the troops of the Union." That action, it was said, indicated the policy of the government to be, not to regard districts occupied and controlled by national troops as in actual insurrection, or their inhabitants as subjects, in most respects, to treatment as enemies."

While admitting that private property in New Orleans, belonging to the enemies of the United States, remained after Butler's proclamation, subject to confiscation, not to military seizure as booty of war, the Court holds that confiscation was possible only to the extent and in the manner provided by the Acts of Congress. The confiscation Acts, passed in August, 1861, and July 1862, prescribed the manner in which alone confiscation could be made. These Acts designated Government agents for seizing enemies' property, and they directed the mode of procedure for its condemnation in the Courts. "No authority was given to a military commandant, as such, to effect seizures of property, and the Acts as the property of a banking institution made confiscable. * * * And it is by no means to be admitted that a conquering power may compel private debtors to pay their debts to itself, and that such payments extinguish the claims of the original creditors."

For this reason, Gen. Banks' order is pronounced wholly invalid, and of course the payment to the Quartermaster by the Union Bank did not satisfy the debt. It was also assigned for error by the Defendant that the Court allowed the Plaintiff to withdraw a remittitur entered by them of part of a verdict obtained on a former trial of the case. As a new trial was granted, it is contended that the remittitur had the effect of a retraxit. As it was entered after judgment, such might have been its effect if judgment had not been set aside, but such cannot be its operation now.

The Defendant asked the Court to charge the jury, that if they found the balance of account sued for, was composed wholly or in part of direct remittances from the Plaintiff to the Defendant of Confederate treasury notes, and of collections of drafts payable and paid in such notes, and if they found the banks were necessary instruments of the Confederate Government for putting its issues of Confederate notes in circulation and forcing them upon the country, and that the Plaintiff as one of the banks, willingly lent itself as an instrument of that Government, then the Plaintiff could not recover such amount of the balance thus composed of treasury notes and collections. The Court refused to charge as requested. The only relevant question presented by the point raised is, whether Confederate treasury notes had and received by the Defendant for the use of the Plaintiff, were a sufficient consideration of a promise, express or implied, of anything. A promise to pay in Confederate notes, in consideration of the receipt of such notes and drafts, cannot be considered an adum pactum or an illegal contract. See Thorington vs. Smith.

The Circuit Court ought not to have charged that no action would lie for the proceeds of the sales of Confederate bonds which had been sent by the Plaintiff to the Defendant for sale, and which had been sold by them, though the proceeds had been carried to the credit of the Plaintiff and made a part of the accounts. It may be that no action would lie against a purchaser of the bonds or against the Defendant on any engagement to sell. Such a contract would have been illegal. But when the illegal transaction has been consummated; when no Court has been called upon to give aid to it; when the proceeds of the sale have been actually received, and received in that which the law recognizes as having had value; and when they have been carried to the credit of the Plaintiff, the case is different. The Court is not then asked to enforce an illegal contract. It is enough that the Defendant has in hand a thing of value that belongs to the Plaintiff. An illegal contract will not be executed by the Courts, but when executed by the parties themselves, and the illegal object accomplished, the thing which was the price of it may be a legal consideration between the parties, and the Court will not unravel the transaction to discover its origin: Falkney vs. Reynolds, 4 Burrows, 2,069; Petrie vs. Hannay, 3 Tenn., 419. Ex parte Bulmer, 13 Ves. 816, goes perhaps farther than can now be sustained. Falkney vs. Reynolds, and Petrie vs. Hannay may have been overruled in England, but the doctrine asserted by them has been approved by the Supreme Court. Armstrong vs. Toler, 11 Wheat., 253; McBlair vs. Gibbs, 17 How., 236; Brooks vs. Martin, 2 Wall., 70; Lestapius vs. Ingraham, 5 Bars., 71; Farmer vs. Russell, 1 Bos. & Pull, 295.

None of the exceptions taken by the Defendant are sustained. There was one assignment of error by the Plaintiff. The Court was asked to charge that if the Jury should find from the evidence that the Defendant received Confederate currency on behalf of the Plaintiff, and entered it to the credit of the Plaintiff on the books of the bank, and used it in their general business, the Defendant thereby became the debtor of the Plaintiff, and that the measure of the indebtedness was the value of the Confederate currency in the lawful money of the United States, at the time the credit was entered and the collections made.

This the Court declined to do, but charged that the measure of indebtedness for receipts, or collections, made by the Defendant in Confederate currency, and used by them in their general business, was the value of such currency at the date of DEMAND of payment made by the Plaintiff, and not at the date it was received and used by the Defendant in their business.

This view of the Circuit Court is sustained. Generally a bank becomes a debtor to its depositor by its receipt of money deposited by him, and money paid into bank ceases to be the money of the depositor, and becomes the money of the bank which it may use, returning an equivalent when demanded, by paying a similar sum to that deposited. A collecting bank is the debtor of the depositor, and is under obligation to pay on demand, and is equal in legal value.

"But this is the rule where money has been deposited, and where there has been no contract or understanding that a different rule shall prevail. The instructions to the Court assume that the deposits were made in Confederate currency and the collections were to be made in the same with the assent of the Plaintiff. The Union Bank then became the agent of the Plaintiff to receive and to collect, not money, but Confederate notes or promises, and the obligation it assumed was to pay Confederate notes when they should be demanded. The subject of the contract was a commodity, not money, and there was no default in the Union Bank until a demand was made and refused. From the nature of the transaction, it is to be inferred that the intent of the parties was that one should impose and the other assume only a liability to return to the Plaintiff notes of the Confederate Government like those received, or collected; notes promising to pay a like sum. See Robinson vs. Noble's Administrators, 8 Peters, 181."

"The value at the time of the loan is not to be considered. Both parties take the risk of appreciation and depreciation." The Plaintiff ought not to recover more than the damages sustained by the breach of the contract. If the notes had appreciated after they were received by the Defendant, the Plaintiff would have been entitled to the benefit of the appreciation, and therefore the risk of the depreciation was necessarily the Plaintiff's.

"This case differs from that of Marine Bank vs. Fulton Bank, 2 Wallace 252. In our case, the collections were not made in money, as in the other, and it was not the understanding that money should be paid. Whereupon the Court concludes as follows:

"That the Planters' Bank ought not to be permitted to recover more than the damages sustained by it in consequence of the Defendant's failure to deliver Confederate notes when they were demanded, and those damages are measured by the value of these notes in United States currency at the time when the demand was made and when the notes should have been delivered." The judgment is affirmed.

Tetter, Salt Rheum and all Skin diseases cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

THE PEOPLE'S STAMP OF VALUE.—The Government Indorsement, which legalizes the sale of PLANTATION BITTERS, is just the only stamp affixed to that famous Vegetable Balm. It bears the sanction of the highest official sanction, the still more valuable stamp of public approbation. This medicinal tonic, which is sold in every drug store, is the only one of its kind that has been earlier dated than the Government endorsement; for millions of people have testified to its value before Congress thought of taxing proprietary medicines. It is unnecessary to repeat, in detail, the properties of the wonderful Vegetable Balm. The last reference that can be offered to those who desire the full particulars of its virtues, is to the General Public. Ask those who have tried it as a remedy for dyspepsia, colic, indigestion, biliousness, intermittent fevers, nervous debility, rheumatism, seasickness, low spirits or loss of vitality, power, and Plantation Bitters has done for them, and be governed by the response they make to your inquiries.

I have for many years used Dr. Pierce's ANDERSON'S VEGETABLE Balm, and I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the most safe, efficient and reliable medicine with which I am acquainted. They promptly relieve dyspepsia and its attendant distresses, costiveness, flatulency, Headache, Loss of Appetite, Cholera, &c., &c. I take pleasure in recommending them to the public. They ward off disease and preserve health. I always keep a full supply on hand and would not willingly be without them. JOHN LOWRY, Jr. Prepared solely by the proprietor, F. R. Newbern is to have a new Building Association.

Warrenton is extremely healthy just now. So says the Gazette.

Quantities of dewberries will be shipped from Ridgeway.

The omnibus drivers in Charlotte are waging war upon each other.

A picnic is to be given at the Grove, in Halifax, on the 15th inst.

Railroad meetings are being held in Perquimans and Camden.

Peaches are abundant in the Ridgeway section, and will soon be ripe.

Ridgeway is shipping large quantities of strawberries to Northern markets.

Dr. Isaac Green, of Warrenton, will locate in Weldon to practice his profession.

Hon. C. L. Cobb has been quite sick in Elizabeth City. He is now convalescing, says the Carolinian.

The closing exercises of the Spring session of the Fetter School, at Kittrell's, came off last week.

The colored population of Weldon made a "strike for higher wages" on Friday last. The News does not give the result.

The hotel at Nag's Head will be opened for the summer on the first of July. A good wharf is being built, and a comfortable steamer will run regularly during the season.

The ladies of the Episcopal Church at Weldon will give an entertainment there to-night for the benefit of their church. An attractive programme has been arranged.

The murderers Baker and Moore were both sentenced to death in Charlotte, on Friday last, the first on the 11th of July and the latter on the 27th of June. An appeal in both cases was taken to the Supreme Court.

The commencement exercises of the Warrenton Female School will commence on Friday, the 7th inst. Rev. Mr. Thompson will preach the sermon before the graduating class, and Hon. W. N. Robins will deliver the Address.

Says the Tarboro' Enquirer: "We know two bachelors of our town who discuss the subject of marriage so much that we never inquire the subject of conversation when we go where they are, but only ask at what point the discussion has arrived. We are afraid that the discussion will be all they will ever experience of their subject."

Says the Warrenton Gazette: "Capt. W. T. Alston seems to have been the heaviest loser in the county from the late heavy freshet in the Roanoke. Ninety acres of his cotton which had two hundred and fifty lbs. of Guano per acre on it, was washed up, all the soil, guano, and cotton carried away, and nothing but the hard, impervious clay left. There was an excellent new oak plank fence, extending from the river to the woods, a distance of three-fourths of a mile, washed off and destroyed. The fence was put up with regular fence nails, bought in New York for the purpose. The angry waters were so restless, however, in their progress as to sweep away all obstacles, and the plank was washed up, and the gates carried down stream. Mr. Alston also lost three miles of rail fencing, which he had put up a year ago, in his low-ground. He has mighty holes, both wide and deep, cut out by the waters as they rushed in resistless volume over the fields. Several miles of new ditching were filled up, and his splendid plantation looks almost as if the destroying angel had passed over it. Mr. Alston thinks his loss cannot fall far short of $8,000."

The Corn Crop.

There seems to be good ground for the belief that the corn crop of this year will be very much less productive than it has been for several years past, for the reason, as the Chicago Tribune puts it, "that cold, raw and wet weather has prevailed in all parts of the great corn growing belt of country." As if in anticipation of such a result, farmers who each had twenty acres in 1872 have only half that amount this year. In 1872, "the great corn growing belt," which includes Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, and Minnesota, yielded $50,548,000 bushels. Their yield of Illinois alone was 247,600,000 bushels, while Iowa, second in productiveness, gave 101,170,000. At this time it is not easy to calculate the probable loss of the farmers because of the decreased yield, particularly as the prices are pretty certain to be largely in excess of what they were last year. As the exports during former years depended almost entirely upon the abundance and consequent cheapness of the article there is sure to be a great falling off this year, for the corn factors of Great Britain will certainly not be able to pay higher prices than can be obtained from American consumers.

Artificial Eye.—We find by the census details that all the people of the United States depend upon one shop for their home-made artificial eyes, and this shop only employs three hands. Think of the consequences to one-eyed people if this shop should burn up, or one or two of these men should die, or they should all go on a strike.

The Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who is always reliable, says: Ex-Governor Wise, of Virginia, during a recent visit to this city, emphatically denied that there was any authority for the rumor that he proposed to run as an independent candidate for Governor this fall. He is much offended at the liberties thus taken with his name.

Congress passed an act in 1868, to the effect that in the case of the death or inability of the Chief Justice to discharge his duties, the associate Justice holding the commission of the next date shall perform all the duties of the Chief Justice until another is appointed. Under this act Associate Justice Clifford will act as Chief Justice until the successor of the late Chief Justice Chase is appointed.

The cotton factories of Petersburg, Va., are enlarging their facilities, one of them adding 100 looms.

REAL DOG CARTS.—The use of dogs for traction of vehicles used by hucksters is a notable feature of traffic in Berlin. Bakers' and grocers' wagons, milk carts, fruit and soda-water stalls, furniture cars and lighter vehicles of all descriptions are shown by two or three dogs harnessed like horses, or by a single dog harnessed by the side of a woman or boy. The number of dog carts registered among the licensed conveyances of Berlin is 3,186.

LINGERING SNOW.—The Boston Journal of May 24th, says: Some of the roads in Plymouth and Reading, Vt., are yet impassable on account of snow. And the same paper has a letter from Augusta, Me., dated the 23d, which says: On many hills slopes the snow still lingers. In Dixmont three feet of snow is reported in some places. In many fields in that town, which are being ploughed, the ground is white with snow.

One of the high city officials of Petersburg, Va., was on the streets of that city, Saturday night, in a helpless condition from intoxication. Oh, the times!

A Western editor humbly acknowledges his shortcomings in not having a good paper last week, and explains that his assistant was "petrified into a piece of inanimate sculpture." If the man was really on a spree, why would it not be just as plain, and more poetical, to say that he had set up for an animated bust.

Philadelphia, in addition to the coming ten-centennial, is now boasting of the largest manufactory of lightning-rods in the world. Perhaps the rods are accounted for by the contiguity of Jersey lightning. But in case of the ordinary effects of the Jersey electric fluid, a policeman is generally the best conductor.

Coe, the Boston forger, having commensated his operations on a great number of merchants, the metaphysical Boston papers complain that he was a fool to forge the names of Tom, Dick and Harry. Perhaps he thought he was a member of the firm of Tom, Dick, Harry & Coe.

The Baltimore Presbyterian Assembly.—Good Results, to the formalizing of the Two Churches North and South, Looked For.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The following prepared by a leading elder and member of the Baltimore Presbyterian General Assembly, which adjourned Saturday, will interest Southern Presbyterians:
"This large and influential body, consisting of between 500 and 600 ministers and elders, representatives from all parts of the Union, after a remarkably harmonious session of two weeks, finally adjourned on Wednesday night, 28th, to meet next year in St. Louis. Its presiding officer or Moderator was the Rev. Howard C.oby, D. D., L. L. D., of the Fourth Avenue Church, Brooklyn, and Chancellor of the University of New York. Many important subjects were discussed and decided, the details of which will be found in the religious papers. What will be most interesting to the Southern Christians was the broad liberal action of this Assembly in relation to a fraternal organic union at some early day with the Southern Assembly and other branches of the great Presbyterian family, holding the same faith and aiming at the same results, the unanimous adoption of a report and of sundry resolutions submitted by Dr. Nichols, of St. Louis, the difficulties hitherto existing as to a reunion with the Southern General Assembly of the Old School Synod of Missouri. After a preamble, the resolutions declared: 1st. That all former differences of the Assemblies representing the Old School teaching, the Southern General Assembly, or the Synod of Missouri, are now and have been since the reunion null and void. 2nd. That the Assembly express full confidence in the soundness of character of those brethren, and cannot doubt that an invitation at communion would lead to the speedy removal of the barriers that now separate these of like precious faith and to a practical manifestation of their belief in Christ, &c. &c. It was rumored that this action in the Assembly was satisfactory to and approved by the leading men in the Southern Church, as Dr. Stuart Robinson and Dr. Watson, of Louisville, Kentucky, Mr. Palmer, of North Carolina, Dr. S. Kiborn and Dr. Bulluck, &c. &c., is hoped that such sentiments, extending the alive branch, may be adopted and perpetuate it in all parts of our common country. Dr. Baird, of Nashville, superintendent of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, made an able and eloquent address to the Assembly and said that their 105 Presbyterians and their 130,000 members, with all their colleges and schools, were ready and willing to return to their mother church, if a reunion was considered desirable. The Moderator replied in fraternal and eloquent terms, and a committee of conference was appointed. Similar propositions were received from the General Assembly of the Welsh Presbyterian church and other bodies, and it seemed indeed as if the era of good feelings had returned. The intention of these resolutions and the effect of the action of the Assembly is to remove all imputation from crime from persons who took part with the South in the recent struggle."
